Instruction by Design Podcast

Introduction

Instruction by Design, your podcast to the art of teaching, is a conversation between the instructional designers from Academic Innovation (Steven Crawford, Jinnette Senecal, Celia Coochwytewa, and Aaron Kraft) about various topics on course design, pedagogy, and educational technology. Our goal for the podcast is to explore ideas for new practices and tools for implementation in your courses.

Episode Listing

We publish new episodes every two weeks during the academic year. This fall, we plan to explore:

- Designing Your Course Syllabus
- Semester Start Up Triage
- Andragogy
- Copyright Basics for Educators
- Quality Matters Connect Conference
- Effective Instructional Multimedia
- Teamness – Instructional Designers and Collaboration
- Interactive Learning Material Design and Development
- Your Course Evaluations and You

Previously, we have discussed:

- Faculty Conversation (Reflections on Teaching, Faculty Development, and Mentorship)
- Podcast on Podcasting
- Lightning Round Discussion (Multiple Topics)
- Professional Development for Busy Faculty
- OLC Innovate Conference 2017
- Team-Based Course Design
- Instructor Presence (Both F2F and Online)
- Moving Beyond the Textbook for Learning Materials
- How Can Instructional Designers Help You?
- Tools for Flipping the Classroom
- Increasing Classroom Engagement (Active Learning)

Subscribe to the Podcast

We view this as an opportunity for faculty to engage in faculty professional development on their own schedule and encourage you to subscribe to this podcast via Apple iTunes, Google Play, or SoundCloud via http://links.asu.edu/IBD_Podcast

Engage and Share Your Topic Ideas

✉ Email us at InstructionByDesign@asu.edu
🐦 Follow us on Twitter @IBD_Podcast

For more information:
CONHI-AI@asu.edu | 602-496-2233
7/25/2017
Page 1 of 1