Instruction By Design Podcast

Introduction

Instruction By Design, your podcast to the art of teaching, is a conversation between the instructional designers from Academic Innovation (Celia Coochwytewa, Aaron Kraft, and Jinnette Senecal) about various topics on course design, pedagogy, and educational technology. Our goal for the podcast is to explore ideas for new practices and tools for implementation in your courses.

Episode Highlights

New episodes are released monthly. Across 2019, we plan to explore:

- Constructing Knowledge by Mapping Concepts
- (Re)Defining Instructional Design
- A Student Perspective on Course Design, Pedagogy, and Technology
- Adaptive Learning Approaches
- Digital/Technical Literacy Benchmarks for New Students
- Developing Teaching Expertise
- Reflections on an LMS Migration Experience
- Academic Assessment Planning
- ...and more!

Previously, we have discussed:

- Academic Integrity
- Copyright Basics for Educators
- Course Evaluations
- Designing a Course Syllabus
- Digital Portfolios
- Effective Discussion Board Design
- Evaluating Assignments with Rubrics
- Faculty Reflections on Teaching, Professional Development, and Digital Badges
- Forming Formative Assessments
- Increasing Classroom Engagement (Active Learning)
- Instructional Multimedia Tools & Techniques
- Instructor Presence
- Managing High Enrollment Courses
- Moving Beyond the Textbook for Learning Materials
- Professional Development for Busy Faculty
- Team-Based Course Design
- Teamness & Collaboration
- Tools for Flipping the Classroom
- ...and more!

Engage and Share Your Topic Ideas

Email us at: InstructionByDesign@asu.edu
Follow us on Twitter: twitter.com/IBD_Podcast

Listen and Subscribe

We view this as an opportunity for listeners to engage in professional development on their own schedule and encourage you to subscribe for automatic updates when new episodes are published!

links.asu.edu/IBD_Podcast